The Freshwater Trust is like many start-ups located here in the Silicon Forest in that we're creating game-changing solutions for a sector that desperately needs changing. In order to continue innovating and developing new tools for water investment and management, we need the support of generous, forward-thinking individuals and businesses to provide the fuel that fires our work.

It's time for a new era of conservation, and it's what our rivers, our wildlife, our communities and our economies need now.
